FRANKLIN JACKES HOSTED BY THE YANKEE AIR MUSEUM

Author Franklin Jackes, fulfilling his boyhood dream, flew airplanes for a living for almost twenty years. Jackes shares stories of his life in aviation from the thrill of leaving the ground for the first time to flying incredible and dangerous missions across the Pacific Ocean as an Air Force pilot during the Vietnam War. With 6,875 hours aloft, this intrepid airman “cheated death and defied the law of gravity”—and never had a bad day doing it.
